BOOK PROJECT

- In progress Machine Gun Politics: Why Politicians Cooperate with Criminal Groups
My dissertation book project investigates why politicians cooperate with criminal groups. I develop a theory of criminal clientelism, arguing that certain politicians strike deals with criminal groups in what can be an successful and low-risk electoral strategy. I use quasi-experimental methods, build a novel dataset, and ethnographic fieldwork to analyze different forms of politician-criminal bargains in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.
